Governor's Address Is

Requests That Record

(Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 11.—The Oklahoma legislature, called into extraordinary session by Governor J. C. Walton, convened today. The house was called to order at 9:11 a. m. by B. A. Stovall, representative from Choctaw County, who was chosen majority floor leader at a caucus last night.

The proclamation returned full authority to all civil officers. It was drawn last night but was not made public until today when Adjutant General B. H. Markham made the announcement at his headquarters.

A few minutes after the senate convened and both houses then recessed for a joint session to receive the message of the governor.

Governor Walton called the legislature to enact an anti-Klax Klan law to "save the state from the disaster" he says "faces through the existence of the secret organization."

In his address the executive charged the Klax Klan with responsibility of hundreds of outrages and punctuated his remarks by laying before the lawmakers transcript of all testimony adduced by military courts of inquiry which, under his proclamation of martial law, investigated mob violence and masked depredations in various parts of the state.

He requested the solons to examine the record and then publish it. "This all-powerful and most demoralizing super-government is undermining the very cornerstone and foundation of our government and is sapping the life blood of our citizenship," Governor Walton declared.

"It must either be killed or the government itself, must finally give way to anarchy and revolution. There is no alternative or middle ground."

The Governor reviewed at length the chain of events which have kept the state in turmoil a month and concluded his message with a plea that the legislature immediately pass a bill, which he, himself, prepared "that the people may be protected forever, in their person, property and fundamental liberties."

"FLYING SQUADRON"
LEAVES FOR ATHENS

Bishop Coadjutor McDowell, Mrs. Pope of Birmingham, and Rev. Middleton S. Barnwell, members of the Episcopal "Flying Squadron" now in Northern Alabama conducting the annual national campaign of their church, have completed their mission at Decatur, and today went to Athens for two meetings. For the week end the party will be in the Tri-Cities.

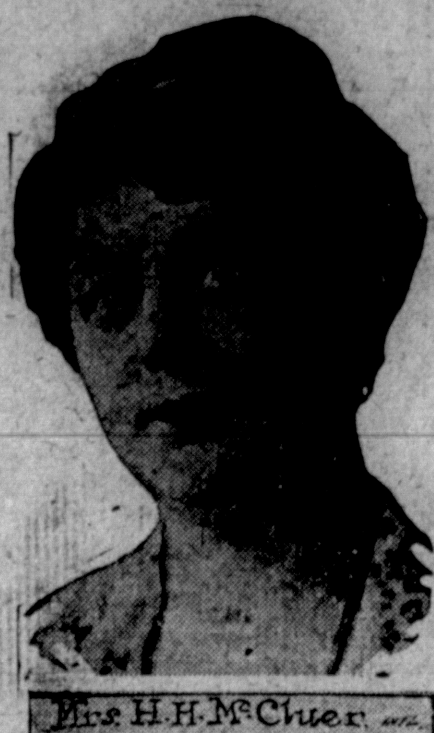

Rev. Barnwell and Bishop McDowell appeared for the last time here during their present visit last evening at St. John's Episcopal church where a goodly company heard their address.

The Bishop was proceeded by Rev. Barnwell who stated that the representation of God and God's purposes in the hearts and lives of human beings. He said that Godliness did not come of seeking of books, of the law, or even "the mouth of the Prophet." The speaker said that the law and the 10 commandments failed, that the book alone had failed, and that the Prophets failed to make God known.

"It was only as God looked out through the human eyes of Christ that He began to make Himself manifest to the world."

"It is only as we look out through human eyes in the Spirit of Christ that we can become true missionaries."

The final address to the women of St. John's Episcopal church was given by Mrs. Pope at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Six Thieves Take
Fortune in Furs

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Six thieves early today trucked $125,000 worth of beaded furs from the warehouse of Frederick Huth and company on west 36th street.

The robbery is believed to have covered a period of four hours, while one man stood over the night watchman with a pistol and his companions went through several floors of the warehouse, selecting the choicest furs of the stock.

Sam Renew Was One of Witnesses in Banner Probe

(Associated Press.)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11.—Suit for $100,000 damage was filed in circuit court today by Sam Renew against the Pratt Consolidated Coal company for alleged assault and battery, committed on his person by Cliff Gibson, warden of the Flat Creek mines, while Renew was a prisoner of the state confined in the camp at that place.

The assault took place on April 2, 1923, according to the petition. The plaintiff alleges that he was felled by two negroes and a heavy ash administered by the warden. He was left lying on the floor and was only able to arise after five attempts, his legs being broken.

He was then ordered back into the mines, without medical attention, he petition asserts.

Renew is one of the former convicts who testified before the Jefferson county grand jury during the recent Banner mine probe. The Banner mine is operated by the Pratt Consolidated Coal company, testimony at that hearing showed.

GADSDEN SUFFERS
HUGE FIRE LOSS

(Associated Press)
GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 11.—Fire today destroyed the erecting shed of the Gadsden car works, an auxiliary of the Southern railway an adjoining property, causing a loss estimated at $300,000. Seven hundred men were temporarily thrown out of employment.

Sixty six new box cars, ready for delivery, were consumed in the blaze, which also burned two stores, one residence, a grist mill, tracks running into the shed, tools of workmen and several small buildings connected with the plant, including the air brake division.

The main car shop was not damaged.

VOTES COUNT MOST THIS WEEK
FIRST EXTRA VOTE ENDS THE 13th

This Is the Week for You to See All of Your Friends and Get Their Support. Get All of Your Family Out to Help Win the Prize of Your Desire. It's Easy to Win if You Will Try.

With only three days remaining in which to acquire the $15 sets of new and old subscriptions, each one of which is worth 150,000 extra votes in the race for the Big Buick Four, the two other automobiles and the many other prizes, contestants in the Decatur auto prize campaign are rushing into a last minute sprint for leadership.

At 8 o'clock next Saturday night the first lap of the greatest prize campaign ever conducted by an Alabama newspaper will end. After that hour prize-winning votes will be more difficult to obtain, and the way to victory in the gigantic campaign and a big prize will not be so easy.

Never after this week will subscriptions be worth such immense totals in votes, and as votes alone decide the prize winners the coming three days stand out as a crucial period for all ambitious women and men. All subscriptions turned in before 8 o'clock next Saturday evening are worth not only the regular votes as scheduled but also bonus votes at the rate of 150,000 for every $15 worth turned in.

It is not at all necessary that contributions be made in $15 sets. On the contrary, they should be turned in as fast as secured in order that service may be prompt, and the campaign office will keep account of all extra votes accruing and issue them all at the time when the set is complete. Contestants are not limited in the number of $15 sets on which they may gain extra votes, and all subscription payments over an even number of $15 sets will receive a extra vote coupon good for 150,000 extra votes.

In order to permit contestants from the outside division to profit as much as the city entrants by the 150,000 extra vote offer, all subscriptions mailed into the campaign office of the later than 8 p. m., October 13, will apply on this premium. All subscriptions brought to the office must be in by 8 o'clock.

Alert persons entering the campaign now can easily win tip-top positions in the race by giving their rare time this week to a vigorous campaigning for support among their friends and acquaintances. So tremendous are the possibilities of the current extra vote offer that a great many surprises and upsets are bound to occur, by next Saturday evening.

Candidates for the many great prizes the campaign offers are in forming their friends of the extraordinary value of subscriptions if obtained and turned in at this time, and are in this way paving the way for a big finish to the first lap of the race. Any one who intends to help an entrant on in her or his ambition to win a motor car is naturally anxious to give such support at the most timely period, obviously when the subscriptions counts for the most prize winning votes.

The mammoth race for the three automobiles and other prizes for spare time effort in the campaign, has

Mrs. W. E. Stokes and Edgar T. Wallace

The sensational divorce suit brought by W. E. D. Stokes, multimillionaire New York sportsman, against his pretty young wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, is on trial again in New York City. Mrs. Stokes was completely exonerated on the first trial. Although Stokes has named 57 different correspondents, among them his own son, whose name he later withdrew, he is pressing the charge this time mainly on the allegation of intimacy with Edgar T. Wallace, a prominent New York traction official. All these photographs were made in court.

POLO GROUND, New York, Oct. 11.—Stunned into late sleeping, perhaps by the thrills of yesterday's epic game, which Casey Stengel won for the New York Nationals with a ninth inning home run, Gotham's baseball fans arrive slowly at the Polo grounds today for the second encounter between the champions of the two major baseball leagues for the world's title.

The early fans filed into the park lazily and leisurely. Advance guards of the two teams came onto the field almost simultaneously but there was hardly a ripple from the crowd.

Looking jaunty and full of fight, it would not have been guessed the Yankees lost the opening game yesterday. Evidently they believe with their Manager Miller Huggins, that all the breaks went to the Giants and they would have better luck today.

Babe Ruth, one of the first on the field swung his trusty bat on the sidelines, while coxy Dolan gave the Giant recruits some batting practice on the diamond. The Giants were at their best in their spick and span white uniforms, while the Yankees had on their blue travelling costumes.

The probable line-up is:

MAID DESCRIBES
MRS. STOKES' VISIT

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Lillian Payne negro maid in the east 35th street apartment of Edgar C. Wallace from July to December 1917 and a visitor there on errands for six months previous, today testified at the trial of the W. E. D. Stokes divorce action against Mrs. Elwood Stokes, that she had seen Mrs. Stokes in the apartment in company with Wallace, who is named as co-respondent.

Mrs. Stokes, she said, came in with Wallace through a kitchenette entrance, and accidentally came face to face with her.

The next day, the witness said, she found two short gold colored hair pins and a huge strand of red hair in a comb and brush on the dressing table.

Postal Savings
Methods Talked

The national post offices have on a campaign of education as to the advantages claimed by the government as a money borrower.

A poster given out to patrons of the local office by Postmaster L. E. Huie states that while the government does not offer as high prices for money as some institutions that government investments are considered very safe and reliable in every way.

The government is now recommending through post-masters two kinds of saving methods, the one is to deposit money in the postal savings, and the other is to invest money in the treasury savings certificates.

It is pointed out that if a lender to the government will let money put into treasury savings certificates for five years a return of 4 per cent interest is allowed, compounded semi-annually.

SERVICES TONIGHT
Services will be held tonight at the Westside Presbyterian church at 7:15 o'clock by Rev. M. C. Dickson. He preached last night to a large congregation and much interest was shown in the meetings.

Now that the English horse Papyrus is over back home are writing dope to the effect that after all, Papyrus is not the best horse they have.

The Washington bureau says the price of food has risen four per cent in the last month. Most people could balance off that four per cent by eating that much less and still be better off.

The well known bond of sympathy existing between mankind and the dog has of late been made the means of perpetrating fraud upon tender hearted, unsuspecting men and of separating faithful dogs from their masters.

The frauds who defraud the unwary in connection with dogs are said to be automobile fiends, who come near to cities and manage to get their automobiles broken down near the city limits.

They send an S.O.S. message about the city and soon have a goodly company of men and boys around the automobile.

The attention of some benevolent-looking members of the crowd of spectators is finally directed to the alleged fact that the travelers are not only broken down as to their automobile, but financially speaking they are worse off than Germany.

The gentlemen travelers are too proud, of course, to have the hat passed, but they do possess a very valuable dog—one very dear to their aristocratic hearts, and for enough money to pay for the repair of the automobile, buy gas and food, etc., they would be willing to part with the dog, at a nominal sum, despite the fact the dog is a thoroughbred and trained in all the wisdom and skill of dogdom.

The traveling masters of the dog weep as they talk of the necessity of selling their loyal friend, the dog, and about that time the greedy desire to get a fine dog cheap takes possession of the benevolent-looking intended victim, and he puts up $15.00 for a dog he is sure he can sell for $50.

The money is paid over, the crowd withdraws, and the dog sellers get their automobile to run,

after all, and away they go to steal another fine dog and sell him possibly before the sun goes down.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS SHOULD

HAVE A GOOD GAME WARDEN

Those interested in the conservation of wild life will be pleased with many of the provisions of the bird and game law as passed by the legislature.

A provision of primary importance in the new law is the appointment of a game warden for each county who shall give his whole time to the protection of birds, wild animals and the fish supply of the county. Mr. Quinn, the state commissioner of conservation, will have the important duty of selecting the county game wardens.

Too much care and attention cannot be given to the selection of a suitable man for the position.

It is not just a job to be a game warden; it is a grave responsibility. No man who is unwilling to accept the position of game warden as a public trust should be appointed. It would seem the duty of all citizens of the county to take an active interest as to just who shall care for the wild life of the county.

It will take a man of intelligence as well as one of consecration to duty. There are a number of important legal matters which should be familiar to the county game warden.

It is provided in the new game law that such fish as bass, trout and bream shall not be taken between the dates of April 1 and June 1. It is unlawful to possess certain fish if they are less than one inch long. This law is intended to protect the fish which are the best of the season.

It is also provided that the fish may not be sold or bartered for less than the market price.

The law also provides that the fish may not be sold or bartered for less than the market price.

before they are old enough to breed.

The dates between which birds may be killed are doubtless familiar to most news readers.

Once the county has an able and reliable game warden, the execution of the fish and game laws can be left to him and the really and truly sports-manlike hunters of the county.

It will not appear of immediate concern to man, as to just what becomes of our birds and wild animals, but future generations if they could be consulted, would be found deeply interested in and deeply concerned for the lives of the wild animals, birds and fishes of this and every other county in the entire country.

LESSONS FROM A

CERTAIN SMITH FAMILY

It has been said and believed from honest hearts—that the days of chivalry have passed, that all the heroic deeds have been done by the heroes and heroines of the past. But that belief had reference only to the spectacular deeds of heroism and to those done in a moment of time, so to speak.

In order to see opportunity of more deeds of heroism, one thing to do is to get rid of the time element. In other words, if one desires to do a heroic service it must be begun regardless of how long its accomplishment may take.

Such a philosophy must have ruled in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith, a long account of whose noble services to their community near Mount Hope in Lawrence county appeared in the Daily of Tuesday. The Smiths must have planned ahead for many years in order to do what they did do.

The particular service done by Mr. and Mrs.

Smith—the one that called out the news story and caused their portraits to be printed in a school journal of the state, was the erection and endowing of the public school near Mount Hope, which will now run for 9 or 10 months in the year instead of for about five months, as was the case before the money and land gift of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

It is interesting to note that from Mr. Smith

no quick turn of fate—no lucky deal, made it himself comes an expression which shows that possible for the school in question to be built and endowed. Mr. Smith says "We really never have made any money, but we have saved a little."

In a word, what this Smith family put into a permanent investment for the good of all future generations, came to them very slowly and at the cost of the utmost care and quite likely at the cost of much hard work.

It was necessary for the Smiths to have cared for their health religiously, or else they could not have been useful workers long enough to have accumulated their many thousand dollars and 776 acres of land.

Unless the couple had plenty of good help, and had it all the time, they must have had to work a great deal with their own hands and heads. It is not at all likely that Mr. and Mrs. Smith had good and dependable help all the time, therefore, despite their large holdings in late decades, they doubtless have had to work as hard the last thirty years as the first thirty years of their lives. The school journal pictures of Mrs. Smith show her at work upon some kind of a garment. She does not even take time to look up at the camera man.

Mr. Smith's picture is that of a very busy man.

The motive back of the action of Mr. and Mrs.

Smith in giving a new school house to the children of their neighborhood was love, of course, but like most manly men, the grim old hero does not tell his inmost thoughts but says apropos of the gift:

"For thirty-four years we have sold goods at this place and the neighbors have made what we have; it is right that we give it back to them."

One lesson on successful renting might be learned from the laconic remark of Mr. Smith:

"My renters are my neighbors."

It is beside the question to speak of whether it has been a pleasure all the time for Mr. and Mrs. Smith to have worked and saved as they did in a lonely house, with no children to brighten it.

Mr. Smith said "It is right"—that is the only really important consideration in the whole matter. The worthy couple felt it right to exercise what talents they did have and to give the results of their labor to needy children for all time to come.

What this Smith family did reminds of what was said of certain teachers who have "now passed into the land of shadows—"Peace be unto them, eternal peace and rest, and the fulfillment of the great behest, Ye have been faithful in a few things, over ten cities shall be ruled by you."

The Smith family did not know that they were being remembered by the school journal.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Result of the Conference with the Janitor.

I stood stock still for several seconds with Dick's handkerchief in my hand, trying to solve the queer problem which its presence beneath the table had presented. It was not an odd thing for it to be on the floor—he strews his possessions everywhere—but I had swept the tiny room carefully after I had put my purchases in the refrigerator, and I was sure that it had not been there at that time. And he had not been in the room since to my certain knowledge.

Perhaps it was not Dick's after all, though that conjecture brought up the terrifying possibility that some masculine marauder had been able to make his way into the apartment without my knowledge. I unfolded the mouchoir, shook it out, and examined it closely. There was no mistake about it being Dick's. It was one of a set which I had embroidered and given him upon his last birthday. I could not fail to recognize his monogram in my own needlework.

Something about the feeling of it in my hands brought it quickly up to my face, and I sniffed inquiringly, confirming the conjecture which a hint of dampness about the article had brought to my mind. The handkerchief had been washed and ironed within the last few minutes. I would stake all my housewifely lore upon it.

With sudden distaste, I hurried into the bedroom, opened Dick's handkerchief box and deposited the offending mouchoir within it. No offending it was to me, I felt that I wanted it out of sight as soon as possible, although I would not admit even to myself the reason for my feeling.

Made Discoveries an Intruder. I was glad that my shopping bag called me out of doors. Indeed, I think I should have left the apartment even if I had possessed no valid reason for going. But I felt choked, the room seemed suddenly a stifling prison, and I longed instinctively for the open air.

With trembling fingers I adjusted my hat and coat, picked up my purse and opened the door. As I stepped into the hall, there was a quick, rustling movement in the hall above me, and I looked up, in time only to catch a retreating glimpse of a man's hat.

It needed no Sherlock Holmes to deduce that some man was watching your hall from the next stairway, and that he had withdrawn his head precipitously when he saw our hall door open. Mrs. Marks' warning against sneak thieves recurred to my mind, and my first thought was to rush up the stairs and confront the loiterer. Then, sanity reminded me that I had not the authority for such an investigation, but neither my conscience nor my apprehension would permit me to leave the building with the intruder waiting there, so instead of going directly to the street, I descended from the first floor to the basement quarters of the janitor.

"I take Herman."

I found him contentedly smoking a pipe beside his furnace, to which he gave far more assiduous attention than is accorded many babies. He rose with old-fashioned courtesy as soon as he saw me.

"You want me to carry the things down for you, already, huh?" he asked.

"Oh, no, not for an hour or two yet," I answered hurriedly. "But I thought you ought to know. Mr. Schwartz, that there is a man standing in the third floor hall, watching the people below. He drew back when I looked up, but I caught a glimpse of his hat. Of course he may have business there."

"Xeno," Mr. Schwartz was moving with quick short steps toward the door, and I kept pace with him. "Dot iss no business for anybody to stand in the hall and vatch peopel. I clear him out of dot quick. Here, Herman."

A shock-headed youth appeared from the darkness of the trunk room. I knew that he was the janitor's assistant, and was reassured by his size and added strength. I had felt a trifle apprehensive at sending the old janitor upon an errand which might prove dangerous.

"I take Herman with me," he said determinedly. "Huh?—we soon rout dot looter out. Here Missis Graham, you ca. go out dis door. It is shorter."

He indicated the basement door, and I walked forth upon my errands relieved from my vague fears for the safety of my small possessions from possible sneak thieves.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

The Great Service Judith Rendered Her Country.

MANY centuries before the dawn of the Christian era, Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Assyria, then the most powerful nation of the world, held his court at Nineveh in all the magnificence known to the Orientals of that day.

When he was not feasting and idling in his gorgeous palace, Nebuchadnezzar was planning to extend his kingdom by ruthless plunder and cruel warfare.

It was at this time that he successfully overcame Arphaxad, the King of Media. But this was not enough for the conqueror. He immediately determined to reduce all the nations of the West who had refused to assist him in his conquest.

By Her Charm Judith Gained His Confidence.

He chose for this undertaking his bravest general, Holofernes, who succeeded with little difficulty and then turned his jealous eye on Judea. Only lately returned from their long and wretched captivity in Egypt, the children of Israel assembled and vigorously declared that they would defend their homes and sanctuary to the last man.

The siege started and for forty days the Israelites valiantly defended themselves. Much misery, including death from starvation, resulted from this ordeal. Many were broken down to such a degree of weakness that they urged the governor to give up rather than suffer the great hardships any longer.

The governor agreed to do so in five days. He hoped that some of the surrounding countries would send him aid before that time.

In this emergency a beautiful woman came forward and performed one of the most daring and yet ast which saved her country. We must remember that methods were primitive in those days and that civilization was only dawning. So to accomplish her purpose, Judith employed a primitive method.

Holofernes was her country's enemy. If Holofernes were removed, danger to her country would be removed. So this brave woman who through her charm had been able to gain the confidence of the general, boldly entered his tent while he was asleep and slew him.

Judith and her maid were permitted to leave the camp as had been their custom each night, to pray. They hurried to the camp of Judith's people and told the story.

Great was the rejoicing of those who had feared they were doomed to destruction. So encouraged were they that an attack upon the army of Holofernes was made and the invaders were swept out of the country they had come to conquer.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

What to Do When Father Gives a Stag Party.

HOME-MAKERS are familiar with almost all the common or garden varieties of parties except perhaps the "at-home" stag party for Father. The latter is a party that is designed and carried out exclusively for Father and his friends. None of the family appears or takes any visible part in the entertaining. Father himself, as gracious host, shines alone in this his hour.

Most men think that when they wish to entertain their men friends, they must take them to a restaurant or hotel. But with a nice, comfortable home cooking of the right sort, and a few good liquors, a party may be given every evening with her maid to pray.

On the evening of the fourth day, Judith, although a gentle and shrinking woman, struck the blow center of the platter may be readily served by the spoonful. Regarding beverages, it is noticeable that men like suit-sticks with the relish and soup, a tiny hot roll with fish, a fine nut or raisin bread with the turkey and cheese-sticks with the salad rather than the usual roll and plain bread.

As to dessert, remember that men have a fondness for good, home-made pie with plenty of filling to hold up the top crust. At a man's luncheon, recently, old-fashioned, jelly-filled doughnuts and coffee were used as dessert and they made a big hit, as the doughnuts are seldom made at home in these days.

It may seem appalling to the average woman to arrange and sponsor such an event, but it is really quite simple if she has the aid of a competent waitress. Almost all men love home cooking of the right sort, and this makes planning such a party much easier. Then, too, not having to dress for the occasion and appear simplifies matters for the woman in charge of arranging the party.

In planning decorations, it is well to remember that men usually like colorful flowers and not too many. A low centerpiece is advisable, as it permits an unobstructed view across the table. Men do not care much for souvenirs unless they have some amusing point about them. Delightful dancing-girls, hand painted, fastened to the rim of the water glass make attractive place-cards and should be chosen in variety so that they may be of general interest and when shown to the man "next" may start the conversational ball rolling.

The centerpiece aside, from the meal must depend upon the circumstances and convenience of the family. In many cases, men prefer to entertain themselves, so we may well leave this detail to "father."

Good food, well cooked and carefully served, plentiful but not in too great variety, should be selected for the menu. Five courses are ample or four if a plate course is used. The centerpiece is too costly for this affair, so avoid attempting it. Do not lay a bewildering amount of flat silver, but only enough for three courses. Add the rest as it is needed. Teach the waitress to watch and anticipate the wants of the guests and to keep the food moving, literally speaking, as men hate to wait. And see to it that the vegetables are not carried away so that a request for a second helping may not create an embarrassing situation.

The menu should be planned from the offerings of local markets. Select dishes that are harmonious. For instance, do not follow a lobster salad with ice cream, for most persons think this spells trouble. Individual service and carving in the kitchen leave each guest free to enjoy the meal. If turkey is served, have it attractively arranged on a platter and passed, game-dinner fashion. This allows each guest to select his favorite piece without the planation. Dressing heaped in the

YOUR HEALTH

Why You May Not Suffer With a Floating Kidney

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY diseases are called by odd or striking names. I suppose the first doctor to discover an ailment has the right to label it. He is in a sense the father of the ailment and should have the parent's right to give it a name.

"Floating" or "wandering" kidney is a name you frequently hear. This is one of the peculiarly named diseases I have in mind.

You might have a floating kidney all your life and suffer little or no discomfort. This particular type is known as congenital floating kidney. By this I mean that the attachments which should hold the kidney in place have been lacking from early life.

In any case of floating kidney these tissues are very lax. The blood-vessels may be unusually long, lessening their support. In one way and another the kidney surroundings lack the binding and holding qualities they should possess.

There are many causes for acquired floating kidney. An injury to the back, such as a blow or a fall, may loosen it. Once in a great while the relaxation of the abdominal walls after pregnancy may be followed by displacement of the kidney. In the old days, when they wore worn, the use of tight corsets was supposed to be a factor.

As I have said, some people with floating kidney suffer very little. Others may have severe, spasmodic pains and soreness in the kidney region. The fact that it is movable and creates pressure on other organs causes reflex pains in the abdomen and back.

The dangerous thing is the possibility of twisting, with compression of the ureter—the tube which carries away the urine. Such a complication would cause the fluid to accumulate within the kidney with the obvious effect of such a condition.

The first thing to do if floating kidney is suspected, is to have a thorough examination to determine the position and movability of the organ. Sometimes a properly-fitted surgical corset will be found a great help. It supports and protects the kidney region.

The general health must be built up. Good, nourishing food, proper rest in a comfortable bed, and well-directed exercise are all important. The reason is because these natural methods give firmness and tone to the tissues. Softness and flabbiness are the very things which lead to this disagreeable condition. After the kidney has been restored to its normal position it can be kept there only by giving strength and elasticity to the tissues.

During the acute attack—that is, the period of displacement—rest in bed, with a pillow supporting the back, is the best treatment. Hot applications are very helpful in relieving the pain.

When it is suspected that the kidney moorings are unreliable, good medical advice is essential. You see, these cases sometimes require surgical aid. On this account they must be carefully studied.

With proper care this ailment can be banished, or at least the victim may be protected against serious results.

Answers to Health Questions.

MRS. R. B. F. Q.—My mother is very nervous and wants to take up knitting to occupy her mind. Will this make her more nervous, or is it advisable?

A.—Knitting will not make your mother nervous, but will undoubtedly help her.

R. S. T. Q.—Will you please tell me whether it is harmful to take lemon juice? If it is not harmful, how many lemons can a person take in a week?

A.—No lemon juice is not harmful, provided there is no acid condition present or no kidney trouble. It would depend on the person's tolerance how many lemons he could take.

MRS. J. H. L. Q.—I am a young woman, and have always been inclined to be round-shouldered. Will you kindly advise me how to correct this condition?

A.—I would suggest that you go to the Y. W. C. A. and have the physical director outline a series of exercises for the purpose you mention. If this does not help you it might be necessary for you to wear a brace.

J. E. A. Q.—While packing I was hit several times in the eye and mouth. As a result I have a swelling beneath my left eye and a thick upper lip. Will you kindly advise me how to have this condition corrected?

A.—I would suggest that you consult a plastic surgeon for advice.

A READER. Q.—Will you please tell me how to develop the bust?

A.—Massage with cocoa butter will help to develop the bust. Massage, using a rotary motion.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a young woman 19 years of age, and I was married when very young. I have no divorce but I am keeping company with two young men, because I cannot find out where my husband is. Both the young men want me to marry them, and will help me to become free again.

I don't know which one I love better. The younger lives in my home town, while the other lives in another state. Which would be the better to marry, the one who likes the cities or a faraway I love cities, myself, and would be very lonesome on a farm. Will you please solve my problem?

TWO LOVERS.

TWO LOVERS. It is most unwise for you to accept the attentions of young men before you are free, my dear.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a young man 19 years old. I am in love with two young girls, both about the same age. But I love one more than I do the other. Do you think it is proper to keep company with both of the girls? Another young man is trying to win the love of the one I love better. I can have a date with her whenever I wish. But shall I let him have her and go with the one?

Please advise me what to do. LOVE SICK.

LOVESICK: You are in love with neither of these girls, my friend, since you fancy yourself in love with both. But it will be wise for you to discard both in question for a while and, instead, consider both girls your friends.

The girls, too, have every right to choose the friends they wish. It is not your place to decide whether this young man shall win the friendship of the girl. Why don't you all go about and have joyful times together?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I'm a girl still in my teens. I knew a young man whom I like very well. He and I were very good friends. We wrote to one another for a while, but he told me he couldn't write any more. I asked him why and he said he didn't want to.

Will you please tell me how I can make this young man like me?

ROSEBUD: Surely you have pride, my dear, and will not make any further effort to continue your friendship with the young man since he has made this confession. Enjoy the society of your other friends and do not give him any more thought.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Stunning Street Frock and Hat.

"I LOVE being at the shop every minute when the Fall and Winter season is well under way," Haidee said this morning, out of a clear sky.

"Whom did you see to-day that thrilled you?" I asked.

"Oh, I've seen two actresses, a movie star and a dancer already," she answered.

"It is true that more interesting people seem to come in here than almost any other place in New York," I answered.

"That's what I mean," Haidee returned.

"Of course during the Summer months when so many clients are out of town, it isn't always highly exciting," I added.

"But the snappy people that wander in and out on days like to-day make it well worth while," Haidee assured me.

"I must tell you about the dancer's costume," she continued.

"You mean the one she is ordering here?" I asked.

"No," answered Haidee. "That's a very spectacular affair, too. Something she is going to dance in when her theatrical engagement begins, but I meant the street costume she's wearing to-day."

"Let's have it," I commanded.

"Well, to begin with, she has gotten home from Paris, and her clothes are rather unusual," Haidee said.

"Any smarter than the things made here?" I asked in a challenging tone.

"Certainly not," Haidee answered. "But I've never seen a hat just like the one she wore."

"It was a tiny turban of black suede," she began.

"We have black suede turbans," I interrupted.

"But we haven't any with uncurled ostrich hanging from the back, making the wearer look for all the world as if she had stiff black hair hanging from beneath her turban," Haidee answered me.

"No," I admitted.

"It was too smart for words with her frock," she continued. "The frock was embroidered in dull copper and yellow threads, and the turban had a perpendic the same embroidery across the front of it."

"What was the frock like?" I asked.

"I've enthused over the hat so, I'm almost forgetting to tell you, and one reason the hat was so attractive was because it was in such perfect accord with the dress," Haidee said.

"The dress was a straight little model of black kasha," she informed me.

"Any ostrich on it?" I asked.

"Of course not, foolish," she replied. "But there was embroidery to match that on the hat."

"Copper and yellow sounds like a most attractive combination," I agreed.

"This trimming extended in a deep band from above the waistline to the hem, wide bars of yellow and narrow lines of copper," Haidee informed me.

"There was one other touch," she added. "There was a coppersy and yellow silk handkerchief stuck in a small slit pocket at the right of the blouse."

I begged her to sketch the outfit for me, for it sounded well worth adding to my collection.

RECEPTION FOR MRS. VAL TAYLOR AT LIBRARY.

The fall season begins with a revival of club activities. Quite the prettiest event of the week was the reception at the Carnegie Library Wednesday afternoon from three thirty to five for Mrs. Val Taylor, President of the A. F. W. C. for this event the library had been pleasantly decorated by a committee appointed by the president of the local council Mrs. W. C. Bailey. This committee included the following ladies: Mesdames J. T. Jones and J. W. Cunningham. Mrs. Brentz Pruitt was chairman of refreshments committee. The colors of gold and green were carried in Jackson vines and marigolds. Floral baskets of richly colored dahlias were placed on pedestals. The punch bowl embedded in a most of Jackson vines and marigolds was presided over by Mrs. B. E. Pruitt who were an afternoon gown of white silk with touches of green and Mrs. E. J. Pohlman was attractive in an afternoon costume of pongee.

The state president, Mrs. Taylor, arrived at three in the afternoon with delegates to Florence who had attended the convention of the first district which convened in that city. The club women gathered on the first floor of the library to meet Mrs. Taylor informally, who was introduced by Mrs. John D. Wyker. Then message Mrs. Taylor brought was practical and forceful. She has "Hitched her wagon to a star" and intends to draw her state with her, realizing fully that woman's sphere is steadily enlarging. Mrs. L. P. Troup, manager of the first district, reported pleasingly from the Florence delegation.

The receiving line included Presidents of the local clubs, formed on the main floor of the library, where they met their state president informally, and the ladies had an opportunity to review their pleasant relations following the summer's vacation.

Hair Glory

One minute a day gave it to me

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is my greatest glory. It grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. Mine is a grandmother's age, yet countless girls who see me on the stage and elsewhere, envy my luxuriant hair.

So with my mother. She died at the age of 57 with hair like mine today.

So with many friends who use my method. They have beautiful hair, and it does not lose its color.

I am convinced that millions, in my way, can multiply the beauty of their hair. And I have arranged to bring that method to them.

A French formula.
My mother and I, many years ago, found this formula in France. It had been developed by experts whose whole lives had been devoted to hair study.

One factor in it combats hardened oil and dandruff, the greatest enemies of hair. They stifle the hair roots, check hair growth, choke the supply of pigment which gives hair its color.

Other factors stimulate and fertilize the scalp. Hair thrives on such a scalp as flowers will thrive in a clean and well kept garden.

One minute a day.
I call this formula my Hair Youth. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. Just enough to dampen the scalp. It takes but a moment, and this method does not mess the hair.

You have never known anything so effective, yet it is harmless. It does not affect the hair's color, natural or artificial. Its whole effect is on the scalp and the roots which lie therein.

Hair Youth is sold under guarantee. If the first bottle fails to delight you, your dealer will return its price. So I ask you to try it at my risk. Learn what it does for your hair. Let it do what it did for me and mine, and you will reap rich rewards.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1.00 with eye dropper. Also my Youth Cream, with two fruits in it. My Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. And my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. My Beauty Book comes with each.

My Hair Youth will lead you to want my other helps, I think. And they are all now at your call. Edna Wallace Hopper, Business Address: Waukesha, Wis.—Adv.

Always be Prepared for Company

by Sweet Rose

MAYBE you'll have to learn your lesson through experience then again, maybe you'll take this little bit of advice and avoid the embarrassment which comes of not being prepared for company.

Many folks have a comfortable habit of "just dropping in". One's sense of hospitality doesn't quail before this charming custom but occasionally one does get fussed at the idea of feeding upon short notice other than the regular members of the family.

There's really no need to get flustered at all. What could be more gratefully received by your guests than good hot biscuits? Fact is, you don't need much else when you have them. With Sweet Rose Self-Rising Flour at hand a batch of hot biscuits can be prepared in a jiffy. Everything is already mixed and there is no measuring to do. It's so easy!

Your guests will be delighted, too, because Sweet Rose results are always certain and your biscuits are sure to be a success.

ADVANCE IN TREE SURGERY

Millions of Dollars Being Spent Annually to Salvage Things of Beauty.

Tree surgery, as it is practiced today, is less than a quarter of a century old. It was, naturally, crude in its beginnings, and the past ten years have been the era of its greatest development. It may be said that this development has closely paralleled that of the automobile. In both cases the original principle was sound, but it has taken a good many years to bring about the refinements which constitute the efficient gas-driven car and perfected tree surgery of the present day. Among Americans no line of commercial or professional endeavor can be expected to thrive or even endure for long unless it has a sound economic justification, says E. A. Quaries. We are a practical people and things impractical make a very limited appeal. American home owners spend yearly not less than $5,000,000 in the care of their trees, exclusive of work done on them by labor in their own employ. Ten years ago it is doubtful if half that sum was spent. These figures speak forcefully in confirming the acceptance of tree surgery as an important and practical application of science to the preservation of a useful material possession of mankind.

Shade trees about the home have both an aesthetic and economic value. With many the first named would justify any reasonable care for their preservation. Louis Fugères, the noted painter of birds, said in a recent address that he, for one, was tired of hearing people appealed to for the protection of birds because of their economic value, great as this is. Those of us whose lives are spent with the trees and whose daily endeavors have to do with their preservation sometimes have the same feeling if we must be brutally frank. "Only God can make a tree," is the words of Joyce Kilmer's immortal verse. Do not its majesty, grace, beauty and the suggestion it gives of a link between man and the Creator furnish all the urge that is necessary to give our trees the care they deserve? Short of man himself, few creations of the Almighty so completely fill the eye and satisfy the aesthetic sense as do the trees. In practically all landscaping of any scope trees are the dominating motif. Certainly they deserve better care from man than they receive.—Arts and Decorations.

New Cadmium-Gallium Lamp.
The production of light sources from which pure monochromatic light of various wave lengths and great intensity may be obtained is from a practical viewpoint of great importance in the field of optics.

During the past month, the bureau of standards has constructed an enclosed quartz vacuum lamp using an alloy of gallium and zinc, similar in many respects to the cadmium-gallium lamp previously designed. The design of the new lamp has been so perfected that the lamp operates quite satisfactorily with very little flickering, giving several intense lines, one red and several blue and green.

Preliminary experiments have been made in connection with the production of a thallium lamp, but the results so far have not been entirely satisfactory owing to the high temperature at which it is necessary to run the lamp to prevent the thallium from depositing on the walls of the light space, thus covering up the arc.—Scientific American.

Honor Among Chinese.
It appears that there is a very high sense of honor among Chinese, writes Henry Crosby Emery, LL. D. So it is there among the merchants of America, England, Germany and other countries. Again the differences between individuals are infinitely greater than those between nations. To all this must be added that, since China is an older country, her merchants developed a sense of honor long before western countries. At a time when European commerce was half trade and half piracy, China had developed this high commercial morality. It is probably the half-buccaneering traders who first brought news of this strange and honorable custom to lands who as yet knew it not. Today Chinese commercial honor and English or American commercial honor differ little except that China had developed it centuries before it was adopted in foreign lands.—Harper's Magazine.

CREDITS BETTER CATTLE TO EFFORTS OF CHILDREN

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Boys and girls enlisted in a nation-wide campaign have been a valuable aid in improving the breed of dairy cattle. Frank O. Lowden, president of the Holstein Friesian Association and former governor of Illinois, told the World's Dairy congress today.

Calf clubs are being organized by the children, who become owners of pure bred calves. As a result said Mr. Lowden, the breed of cattle in these vicinities already has been improved. The speaker urged upon the farmers greater attention to breeding. He praised European farmers, to whom he said Americans were much indebted for knowledge of how cattle stock might best be improved.

"The pure-bred associations are fighting the scrub bull, a campaign which will add to the country's health and wealth and in which the cooperation of business interests will be valuable," the speaker said in conclusion.

CHEAP TRAVEL ON CONTINENT AROUSES BRITISH COMPETITION

LONDON.—Cheap travelling on the continent has temporarily superseded non-stop dancing and long distance cricket scoring as the summer craze of England. The honors of the cheap travelling contest, it appears, will go to the person who travels the farthest and the longest on the least money. The daily papers are being swamped with letters from claimants.

A London vicar requests the blue ribbon for the feat of having travelled from London to Switzerland, and gone on a 15-walking tour through that country, and then returned to London with a net expenditure of eight pounds 15 shillings, equal to $40.50.

Two London school teachers have completed a 40-day hike through Germany and Austria and their pocket book was set back only $175.00.

This Never Happened.

"I'll give you all the money you need, but don't ever come to me for advice, for that is one thing I never will give you," said the rich uncle to his hard-up nephew. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

"We'll heat our house this winter with the coal we saved last winter!"

MANY a woman can say that; because every owner of a Cole's Hot Blast Heater saved one-third to one-half in coal last winter—saved enough coal to keep the house warm and comfortable this coming winter.

The amount of coal that used to be necessary for one winter, now gives them heat for two winters. And this is a saving worth while.

Cole's Original Hot Blast Heaters

The secret of this remarkable economy lies in Cole's Hot Blast method of burning fuel. It burns the gases and the smoke which under-draft stoves waste up the chimney. It mixes them with superheated air and drives them back upon the fire where they are completely consumed. And thus it gives you 100 cents worth of heat for every dollar you spend for coal.

And this saving is guaranteed, whether you burn hard or soft coal, coke or wood.

These wonderful stoves have other advantages which mean a cleaner home. There is no spilling of coal or ashes on the carpet, because the coal is poured in at the top, not thrown in at the side, and the ashes are shovelled directly into the hod.

Cole's Hot Blast Heater will allow you to sleep later every morning, because it holds fire over night. All you have to do in the morning is to open the draft.

Come in and see the special demonstrations we are giving this week. You'll be interested.

"Thirty Days on Cow Chow"

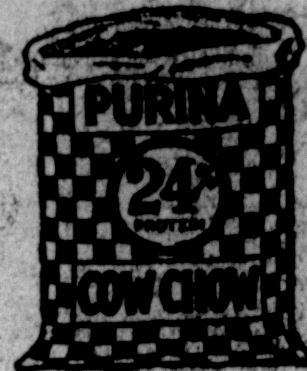

Is the verdict of the judge when a cow has been guilty of losing money during the summer months.

"Thirty days on Cow Chow" will be the Third Degree as to whether it will pay to keep or sell a cow.

If she can't make you a good profit on Cow Chow she can't make it on any ration.

Every pound of Cow Chow fed a good dairy cow will make her produce about three pounds more milk per day on grass—up to normal production.

Cow Chow lowers the per gallon cost of producing milk on pasture. And you can get more milk from fewer cows now. You will get more milk next winter. Don't lose winter profits by under production on pasture. Order today and start to putting the proof right in the milk pail.
